Former Blade Monardo recognized by school, league

University Sports

Lake Superior State University hockey player Domenic Monardo recently received a number of significant awards from both his school and the league his team plays in.

Monardo was named both the most valuable forward and the most valuable player on the Lakers team. He also received the Central Collegiate Hockey Association's Terry Flanagan Courageous Athlete Award and Bud Cooper Coaches Award, and was named Lake Superior State's outstanding male athlete.

Monardo led the CCHA last season in goals (20) and ranked 10th in points (31). In conference play, he led the league with 15 goals.

Monardo is one of several Oakville Blades products to attend Lake Superior State. Kellan Lain attended the Sault Ste. Marie school before recently signing an NHL contract with the Vancouver Canucks. Former Blades star Nick McParland played for the Lakers for four seasons and now is a member of the East Coast Hockey League's Orlando Solar Bears.

Mcinerney signs with Ryerson

White Oaks student Shannon Mcinerney recently signed a letter of intent to play for the Ryerson Rams women's basketball team next season.

Mcinerney, currently playing basketball in the Ontario Junior Elite League with the GTA West team, began her rep career with the Oakville Venom in 2009.

She will study contemporary studies at Ryerson.

Traynor commits to Dalhousie

Loyola Hawks girls' basketball standout Sarah Traynor has committed to play for Dalhousie University next season.

Traynor led the Hawks in scoring this past season, is a two-time Halton league all-star and helped lead Loyola to two regional titles in the past three years. She was also the league's all-star three-point shooting champion in 2012.

Traynor has also played rep for the Oakville Venom the last three seasons and ranks second in free-throw percentage in the Ontario Junior Elite League.

A three-year honour student, Traynor will study commerce at Dalhousie.

"Sarah is a top student and a strong leader on and off the court," said Dalhousie coach Anna Stammberger. "She's an outstanding defender who will immediately improve and increase our depth in the guard position."

Mangialardi scores all-star winner

Emma Mangialardi's goal gave Team West a 1-0 win over Team East in the recent Ontario University Athletics Women's Soccer All-Star Showcase at Vaughan's Ontario Soccer Centre.

Mangialardi, a McMaster University student, and Ali Palmer, who attends Brock University, were the lone Oakville residents to suit up in the game. Laurier's Julie Maheu was selected to the Team West roster as well, but did not play in the game.

Titans' Coulson seeking fourth straight OFSAA trip

"Sometimes they showed a little inexperience but I don't think that was a factor today. It could have went either way."

However, the Titans' season is not over. They will get a chance to earn a return trip to the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations tournament by winning the Golden Horseshoe Athletic Conference semifinal today (Thursday) at McMaster against Cardinal Newman. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

The semifinal winners — Bishop Reding meets St. Jean de Brebeuf in the other — both advance to OFSAA, but will meet in a GHAC final tomorrow (Friday), perhaps giving the Titans a second chance against the Royals.

And though the Titans may be young, they do have experience. Should the Titans win today, it will be the fourth straight OFSAA appearance for the Titans' Melissa Coulson. "That's a pretty big feat," Bonfiglio said.

So would another OFSAA medal for the Titans, the chance of which — given their late-season play — can't be discounted.
