

PROMINENT WOMEN In Business

*A Look at the
"Leading Ladies"
in Oakville Business*

BARBARA GOGGIN

Established 5 years ago, The Goggin School of Traditional Irish Dancing follows an impressive eighteen year competitive career by principle instructor, Barbara Goggin-Wade. Barbara is a member of the Irish Dancing Commission and is a certified instructor registered with Dubland Ireland & Irish Dance Teachers Association of Canada and North America. The school invites dancers ages 3 and up to learn Irish Dancing for competition or just for fun. Barbara operates her business in Scarborough and Windsor. Her busy schedule includes flights to Windsor every Saturday morning where she teaches from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and arrives back to her home in Oakville the same day. The Goggin school is a familiar sight at many local revues including The Waterfront Festival, Toronto's Irish Games and even City-TV's Breakfast Television. Barbara explains that the "lure" of Irish dancing lies in the "grace and elegance of the dance, the lively rythms of the highland fling and the fast moving feet of modern tap". Registration for September classes begins soon. If your child is interested in year round fun, workshops with overseas instructors, pub nights & parties and lots of fun, contact Barbara at (905) 844-0333.

RACHAEL IRVINE

Rachael Irvine, proprietor of PJ's Original Clothing Co. in downtown Oakville, has worked in the sales/service industry since high school. As owner of a specialty shop with casual, quality fashions for children in sizes 4 to 18, Rachael says it's important to provide personal attention and establish a good rapport with customers, in addition to offering attractive, durable merchandise at affordable prices. She seldom forgets a name or a face, and offers top-notch service based on decades of industry experience.
