Suzuki to unveil 2008 SX4 sedan at New York International Auto

Suzuki will reveal the North American version of the all-new 2008 SX4 sedan at this year's New York International Auto Show (NYIAS).

This vehicle will join the dynamic XL7 midsize crossover SUV, award-winning SX4 compact sport X-over (crossover) and media-acclaimed Grand Vitara as an iconic vehicle that indicates the future direction of the Suzuki brand, and will deliver a sporty blend of driving excitement, comfort and performance.

With its contemporary styling, roomy interior and high-output engine, the all-new Suzuki SX4 sedan delivers stylish comfort with excellent driving dynamics designed for those who lead an adventurous life.

The sedan's design incorporates a rounded dashboard with a high roofline to enhance interior space and visibility.

Many features of the SX4 sedan are inherited from the Suzuki Swift, including aspects of the suspension and brake systems.

Like the SX4 X-over, the sedan features a rigid body structure and suspension settings designed for outstanding performance.

Customers will have the choice of a five-speed manual transmission or an available four-speed automatic transmission, and can buy the vehicle starting in the fall of this year. Pricing has not yet been announced.

Suzuki unveiled its all-new 2008 SX4 sedan (European spec. shown here) in Geneva and plans to debut the North American version in New York next month.
